Greetings from the President

I would like to give you a warm welcome to our 46 Conference, which will be held in Lille, France, and online. This year's theme, "Teachers and Teaching: History on the Move," seeks to delve into the histories of the activities and figures involved in the transmission and re-creation of culture and knowledge. Humans are capable of learning, as many other species are, but what perhaps stands out is their capacity to be taught, something that, as Gert Biesta says, calls for the decision to follow or to resist that teaching, which opens a potential space of freedom or emancipation. Teaching is also what enables humans to be included in an intergenerational conversation that extends beyond the limits of a single human life. Teachers, and particularly schoolteachers, are those passseurs, as it is said in French, that take the responsibility of educating others within particular contexts. It is not surprising, then, that the histories of teachers and teaching embody dreams, promises, contradictions, and tensions, and this is what this conference wants to explore. We do so in a moment marked by significant shifts in teachers' work contexts and regulations as well as by increased demands and aspirations about education, and this is leading to teacher shortages in several places. Also, there are ongoing changes in human ontologies, with the emergence of IA and the redrawing of the boundaries between the human and non-human, which are changing the meanings and forms of teaching and learning.

The theme and the location have made this conference very appealing. We received more than 800 submissions, and after an extensive reviewing process, we have 545 presentations scheduled for this year's meeting, of which 395 will be presented in Lille and 150 during our online conference. Of these presentations, there are 495 individual papers, 33 preformed panels, 14 symposia, and 3 research workshops.

The academic program for this year is very strong, thanks to the hard work of the Local Organizing Committee and to all contributors. The keynotes will be given by two dear colleagues: Clémence Cardon-Quint (Université de Montpellier Paul-Valéry) and Ian Grosvenor (University of Birmingham). On Wednesday morning we have organized two roundtables with national societies that are institutional members of ISCHE, which focus on the role of educational history in teacher education in several countries. On Thursday afternoon there is a featured panel on archives with renowned archivists and directors of school museums, which will be held at the Archives Nationales du Monde du Travail (in French, preregistration required). Another highlighted panel is the tribute to Joyce Goodman on Wednesday afternoon, in which her last book on women and educational reform in Japan will be presented. There is a Pre-Conference Workshop on July 7, "Educational Practices and Objects of the Past: A Double Archaeology," which will surely attract those who come early to Lille. Special activities have been planned for Early Career Researchers; check the program for the latest updates. Besides city tours and other social activities, there will be two receptions for the participants, the first one open to everyone at the Pont-de-Bois campus of the University of Lille on Tuesday evening, and the second on the Archives Nationales du Monde du Travail on Thursday; due to limited capacity, this event demands preregistration and a small fee to cover costs.

The conference will have 698 participants from 52 countries, which shows the extent to which ISCHE has become a truly international conference. Of the 698, 79% will be present in Lille and 21% will participate only online; 35% are Early Career Researchers (ECRs) and 40% come from Low GDP countries. Compared to the last two years, there is a larger onsite participation and the proportion of ECRs has stabilized between 30% and 40% of the participants.

Welcome – ISCHE 46 Lille

Another significant figure is that 64% of those who registered for the conference are also members of our society, which continues to thrive. For our members, please remember to attend the General Assembly on July 9 at 3 pm local time, as there are important decisions to make, including electing a new President. Members who do not attend the onsite conference can participate online; a link for connection will be sent through email.

During the GA, we will present the awards bestowed by ISCHE's First Book Award Committee and the Early Career Conference Paper Award Committee, two of our initiatives that seek to promote and give visibility to the work of ECRs. The 2025 First Book Award has been granted to Matthew Gardner Kelly (University of Washington), for his book "Dividing the public: school finance and the creation of structural inequity" (Cornell University Press, 2023). The winners of the ISCHE 2024 Early Career Conference Paper Award are ArCasia D. James-Gallaway (Texas A&M University) for the paper "«I'm Black, and I Can Do This»: Black Girls Expanding Femininity in the 1970s US", and Dayana Murguía Méndez (Instituto de Historia de Cuba, La Habana) for her contribution "Cuba en su Tercer Mundo: becas Sur-Sur y ayuda educativa para "la autosuficiencia" (1977-2012)". We extend our congratulations to all of them for their wonderful work.

I would like to conclude this welcoming message extending our gratitude to the Local Organizing Committee in Lille, particularly Stéphane Lembré, Jean-François Condette, Christine Aubry, Rebecca Rogers, and Solenn Huitric, who have worked tirelessly to organize a conference that ended up being much bigger than they expected. The LOC has been a wonderful and thoughtful partner in the adventure of assembling an academic meeting in harsh times.

I can't help but include some final words, as in last year's message, to express a note of deep concern about the state of the world, in which war and hate are growing exponentially. True, historians of education cannot do much to change this, but there are two things about which we can make our own contribution, at least not to worsen this state of affairs. One is to produce rigorous scholarly work that resists simplification and acknowledges the complexity of human life and our mutual reciprocity and interdependence, which might help to make room for more peaceful dynamics and recognize the stranger not as an alien but as part of ourselves. I borrow this idea from a heartbreaking essay by Isabelle Hammad, a British Palestinian novelist, entitled, precisely, Recognising the stranger, which ends with this sentence: "One day this war will stop, and those of us who remain will return and rebuild, and live again in these houses." And this is related to the second thing we might be able to do: try to take care of our home, our common life as scholars and students of the past, as best as we can, and navigate our differences respectfully, with mutual responsibility and trust, in the hope that we will still be here when this war is over and that houses will be needed then to live peacefully. Also, when intellectual and scientific institutions are under attack, it is important to preserve a space for academic work in which truth as a question remains a significant organizer, and in which difference, dissent and disagreement are not perceived as a threat but are welcome as part of what makes our knowledge practices richer, denser, more relevant and plural.

I find sources of hope in our willingness to listen to each other, learn, know, study, and to be part of a community of scholars interested in the past and in this difficult present in which we live. For that, and for other reasons, I wish that the conference will be a significant experience for those who attend and that the conversations that will take place during the sessions, lectures, workshops, corridors and even cafés and bistrots will nurture new collaborations, knowledge projects, friendships and solidarities.

Bienvenue à ISCHE 46 Lille !

C'est un plaisir et un honneur d'accueillir en France, à Lille, la 46^e Conférence de l'ISCHE. Ce n'est certes pas la première fois que cet événement se tient en France, mais la dernière fois remonte déjà à 2002, à Paris : nous sommes donc heureux de renouer avec cette occasion d'accueillir un nombre très important de chercheurs en histoire de l'éducation, issus du monde entier.

Pour celles et ceux qui ont la possibilité de venir dans le Nord de la France, nous espérons qu'ils découvriront ou redécouvriront un patrimoine qui témoigne d'une longue histoire, notamment industrielle, au cœur de l'Europe. Les lieux mêmes de la conférence sont emblématiques de l'histoire de l'éducation dans le Nord de la France. Sciences Po, où se tiendra le congrès le 9 juin, s'est installé dans les anciens locaux entièrement rénovés des facultés des lettres et de droit inaugurées à la fin du 19^e siècle (1896). Le campus Pont de Bois à Villeneuve-d'Ascq, qui accueillera la plupart des sessions a été conçu à l'extérieur de Lille au début des années 1970 pour faire face à une première massification des effectifs étudiants – il accueille aujourd'hui des formations en lettres et sciences humaines, et forme l'un des campus de l'Université de Lille riche d'environ 80 000 étudiants. Enfin, les Archives nationales du monde du travail, situées à Roubaix et qui accueilleront une table ronde consacrée aux archives de l'éducation ainsi que le dîner du congrès, sont installées depuis les années 1990 dans une ancienne usine textile, l'usine Motte-Bossut, qui forme l'un des fleurons du patrimoine industriel textile, Roubaix ayant été un centre mondial de production lainière à la fin du 19^e siècle et jusqu'aux années 1950.

Dans le prolongement des précédents congrès, ISCHE 46 accueillera, outre un pré-conférence workshop, les sessions des six Standing Working Groups et les sessions qui regrouperont les très nombreuses propositions de communication reçues pour les axes de l'appel à communications. Le thème choisi, « Enseignant.e.s et enseignement. Une histoire en mouvement », s'est rapidement imposé au comité d'organisation. Ce choix s'explique par un contexte dramatique : des attentats commis ces dernières années contre des professeurs, pris comme des symboles de la République et de ses valeurs, ont suscité, en France et au-delà, une très vive émotion. Précisément, la place des enseignants et des enseignantes dans la société française est l'objet de très nombreuses discussions. « Hussards noirs » de la République réputés pour leur volonté d'amener la République jusque dans les villages, selon l'expression de l'écrivain Charles Péguy au début du 20^e siècle, et plus largement figures centrales de la société française, la place des enseignants est moins évidente aujourd'hui. De la remise en cause de l'autorité du maître, perçue comme une rupture avec l'histoire de l'école en France, jusqu'à la dégradation des conditions de rémunération des enseignant.e.s, la place de ceux-ci n'a plus l'évidence qu'a pu avoir, sous la Troisième République (1870-1940), la promotion sociale par l'accès aux métiers d'instituteur ou d'institutrice. Encore faut-il toutefois prêter attention à la diversité profonde du corps enseignant : la sociologie du recrutement, les conditions d'exercice, les clivages entre école primaire et lycée, entre hommes et femmes, entre villes et campagnes, sont très importants. Si l'historiographie française de l'éducation a de longue date abordé l'histoire des enseignant.e.s et de l'enseignement, la vitalité des recherches est réelle et s'inscrit dans cette ambition de complexifier l'analyse. L'ouverture aux comparaisons internationales trouve avec ISCHE 46 une occasion parfaite d'approfondissement.

Les différents axes proposés pour l'appel à communication ont motivé un nombre considérable de propositions (près de 800). Nous avons identifié huit axes pour accueillir les propositions :

1. Parcours professionnels et identités des enseignant.e.s.
2. Conditions de travail et de vie des enseignant.e.s.
3. Pratiques de connaissance.
4. Relations et interactions avec d'autres acteurs / actrices
5. Outils pédagogiques et artefacts scolaires.
6. Les enseignant.e.s et l'enseignement en dehors de l'école.

7. Les acteurs/actrices non humains et les pratiques d'enseignement.
8. Représentations des enseignant.e.s et de l'enseignement dans la littérature, le cinéma et la culture de masse.

Ces axes ont motivé des propositions très nombreuses mais aussi très inégalement réparties avec une forte domination pour le premier axe, ce qui traduit probablement l'état de l'historiographie et dessine, en creux, des pistes de travail pour l'avenir. Dans le présent, toutefois, la richesse des propositions doit se traduire dans des sessions où nous espérons que les échanges seront nombreux autour des présentations soigneusement préparées. Nous vous encourageons toutes et tous à butiner dans le très riche programme proposé, en profitant aussi des deux conférences qui seront les temps forts de cet événement. Vous pourrez aussi profiter, sur place, de la présence d'éditeurs et de représentants de plusieurs revues, ainsi que de deux expositions sur l'histoire de l'éducation, consacrées respectivement à l'éducation sportive et à la formation des enseignants.

Nous vous souhaitons un excellent congrès lillois et de passionnants échanges !

Le comité local d'organisation

Welcome to ISCHE 46 Lille!

It's a pleasure and an honor to welcome the 46th ISCHE Conference to Lille, France. Although this is not the first time the event has been held in France, the last time was in Paris in 2002, so we're delighted to be able to welcome a large number of researchers in the history of education from all over the world.

For those who are able to come to Northern France, we hope they will discover or rediscover a heritage that bears witness to a long history, particularly industrial, in the heart of Europe. The conference venues themselves are emblematic of the history of education in Northern France. Sciences Po, where the conference will be held on June 9, has moved into the completely renovated former premises of the Faculties of Laws and Letters, inaugurated at the end of the 19th century (1896). The Pont-de-Bois campus in Villeneuve-d'Ascq, which will host most of the sessions, was designed outside Lille in the beginning of the 1970s to cope with the initial upsurge in student numbers. Today, courses are centered on the humanities and social sciences; it is one of the campuses of the University of Lille, which boasts some 80,000 students. Last but not least, the Archives nationales du monde du travail in Roubaix, which will host a round table on education archives and the congress dinner, has been housed since the 1990s in a former textile factory, the Motte-Bossut factory, which is one of the marvels of our textile industrial heritage. Roubaix was a world center for wool production from the end of the 19th century until the 1950s.

As in previous conferences, ISCHE 46 will host, in addition to a pre-conference workshop, the sessions of the six Standing Working Groups, in addition the many sessions formed in response to the call for papers. The theme, "Teachers and teaching. A history in motion", was an obvious choice for the organizing committee, the product of a dramatic context. Attacks committed in recent years against teachers, seen as symbols of the Republic and its values, have aroused strong emotions in France and elsewhere. The place of teachers in French society is the subject of much debate. As "Hussards noirs" of the Republic, renowned for their determination to bring the Republic to the villages, as writer Charles Péguy put it in the early 20th century, and more broadly as central figures in French society, the place of teachers is less clear today. From the questioning of the teacher's authority, perceived as a break with the history of schooling in France, to the deterioration in teachers' pay conditions, the place of teachers is no longer as obvious as it once was, under the Third Republic (1870-1940), when social promotion through access to the professions of teacher. However, it is important to bear in mind the profound diversity of the teaching profession: the sociology of recruitment, the conditions of practice, the cleavages between primary and secondary school, between men and women, between town and country, are all very significant. While French historiography of education has long dealt with the history of teachers and teaching, the vitality of research is real and is in line with this ambition to make analysis more complex. ISCHE 46 provides a perfect opportunity to explore international comparisons in greater depth

The various themes proposed for the call for papers attracted a considerable number of proposals (nearly 800). We had identified eight areas for proposals:

- A. Teacher's Career Paths and Identities
- B. Teachers' Working and Living Conditions
- C. Knowledge Practices
- D. Relationships and Interactions with Other Actors
- E. Teaching Tools and School Artefacts
- F. Teaching and Teachers Outside the School
- G. Non-human Actors and Teaching Practices
- H. Representations of Teachers and Teaching in Literature, Cinema and Mass Culture

These themes prompted a large number of proposals, although the first theme dominates by far the proposals received. This probably reflects the state of historiography, and suggests avenues for future research. The wealth of proposals, nonetheless, should generate vibrant exchange around the carefully prepared presentations within and around the sessions. We encourage everyone to browse the rich program on offer, and take advantage of the sessions in both two conferences that are the heart of this event. Those present in Lille will be able to take advantage of the presence of publishers and representatives of several journals, as well as two exhibitions on the history of education, devoted respectively to sports education and teacher training.

We wish you an excellent conference experience in Lille, as well as exciting discussions!

Key note addresses

Clémence Cardon-Quint

Clémence Cardon-Quint is Professor in History at Université de Montpellier Paul-Valéry (France), member of the research laboratory CRISES, and of the Institut universitaire de France. She is co-editor of the journal Histoire de l'éducation. Her scholarship has successively focused on teaching and teachers of literary subjects in the 20th century; on subject matter associations; on budgetary aspects of education; and on knowledge regime and research policy in educational matters. In her research, she sought to understand how the evolution of knowledge, the exercise of state power and social change simultaneously contributed to transformations in schools. Her publications include Des lettres au français. Une discipline à l'heure de la démocratisation (1945-1981) (PUR, 2015), and L'argent de l'école. Histoire du budget de l'éducation nationale depuis 1945 (Presses de Sciences Po, 2025).

“Portrait of the teacher as a civil servant”

The professionalization of teachers is rightly recognized as a key element in the development of mass schooling and the effectiveness of education. This process is shaped by the relationships that teachers – both as individuals and as organized groups – maintain with various segments of the State. In France, this relationship is particularly strong: the State regulates teacher qualifications, recruits through competitive exams, inspects, pays and so on. Over the course of the last two centuries in France, teachers became increasingly “civil servants” (fonctionnaires) – which can mean many things.

As a result, alongside the primary relationship between teachers and their pupils in the classroom, there exists a secondary network of connections linking teachers to the State. This network is more distant and harder to define, but no less tangible, if only through the paycheck. The status of civil servant carries with it a series of duties and obligations: teachers implement the curricula defined by the State, uphold official values, obeys their hierarchy... However, as we know, this framework does not fully capture the complexity of the situation, both past and present. This puts the historian in a dilemma. Studying teaching in the 20th century as if the state didn't play a role overlooks the profound influence it has had, starting with the materiality of the archives that give us access to this history. Yet, giving the State the place it is legally entitled to is to treat a constructed narrative at face value.

In this talk, Clémence Cardon-Quint will explore this network of relationships, made up of men, women, forms, financial flows, texts and more, analyzing both the factors that strengthen and those that weaken it. She will revisit key questions raised throughout her research – such as teacher training, activism, school culture, the role of women, remuneration – while drawing on both French and international scholarship on the embedment of teachers in the State. Teacher's place within the State is not given once and for all; rather, it is result of an ongoing process of reciprocal adjustments, regulation, contestation... The rise of private players in education since the late 20th century, the recent surge of the anti-establishment voting among French teachers, or the rejection of the competitive examination by aspiring teachers all indicate that the integration of teachers into the State may be less irreversible than previously thought.

Ian Grosvenor

Ian Grosvenor is Emeritus professor of Urban Educational History at the University of Birmingham, England. Current research focuses on education, activism and art; education and the ecological turn; and cultural learning and community engagement. Books include Assimilating Identities. Racism and Education in Post 1945 Britain (1997), Silences and Images. The Social History of the Classroom (1999) with Martin Lawn and Kate Rousmaniere, The School I'd Like (2003), School (2008) and The School I'd Like Revisited (2015) all with Catherine Burke, Materialities of Schooling (2005) with Martin Lawn, Children and Youth at Risk (2009) with Christine Mayer and Ingrid Lohmann, the Black Box of Schooling (2011) with Sjaak Braster and Maria Mar del Pozo Andrés and Making Education: Governance by Design (2018) with Lisa Rasmussen.

With Tim Allender, Inés Dussel and Karin Priem he is editor of the De Gruyter book series Appearances – Studies in Visual Research. Between 2014 and 2021 he was Director of the Voices of War and Peace First World War Engagement Centre. Previous roles include Deputy Pro-Vice Chancellor for Cultural Engagement and Head of the School of Education, University of Birmingham, Secretary General of the European Educational Research Association [EERA], founding convenor of EERA's Network 17 History of Education, and Managing Editor of Paedagogica Historica, 2008-2020. He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

“‘The best of times’ and ‘the worst of times’: ‘Adventures in Education revisited.’”

‘There is just one place where yesterday and today meet, recognise each other and embrace, and that place is tomorrow,’ so wrote the Uruguayan author Eduardo Galeano in his The Book of Embraces (1991) in which, using anecdotes and fragments of autobiography, he offered a record of the past and encouraged his contemporaries to continue the fight against political, social and economic inequalities. Galeano came to mind when I found myself reflecting on the interwoven nature of the social, the historical and the spatial in shaping histories of education written, the concepts used and the dialogues in the present with the past which have made research knowable and actionable. The present paper ‘The best of times’ and ‘the worst of times’: ‘Adventures in Education revisited’ includes fragments of autobiography, is both future and past focused and takes the form of a journey from the past into the present and possible futures. A journey in the present that is being shaped by growing instability and insecurity in the world, of fears about climate change and pathogen mutations, of the fraying of democracy, the growth of populism and identity politics and of the shift to authoritarianism. Elements which are all bearing down on democratic education and its futures. Yet, it is also a journey of active conversations with the past, of adventures in education that have produced reconstructive histories and forcefully made the case for the role of education in civil society, of historians of education bearing witness and of standing firmly in the present as mediators between past and future.

General information

7, 8, 10 and 11 July : How do I get to Université Lille Campus Pont de Bois?

FROM LILLE FLANDRES STATION:

Take metro line 1, direction 4 cantons, to “Pont de Bois” station. At the metro exit, cross the esplanade and turn left. At the crossroads, turn right, then up the stairs and left onto the footbridge. Continue straight ahead, passing between the central library and the university restaurant. Building B is after the library, on your right : ISCHE 46 will be indicated and the route signposted.

Bus or metro tickets can be purchased at metro stations (automatic ticket machines) or online:
<https://www.ilevia.fr/boutique>

FROM LILLE EUROPE STATION:

Take metro line 2 (direction St. Philibert) to Lille Flandres station (one stop). Then follow the instructions above.

If line 1 is out of service

Take line 2 towards ‘CH Dron’, get off at ‘Fort de Mons’, then take bus no. L6, get off at ‘Pont-de-Bois’ and follow the instructions above.
